REFORM WORK IN NEW YORK

THE POLICE MAGISTRATES' BILL HAS PASSED THE HOUSE.

Governor Morton, in a Special Message, Recommended its Early Passage for the Benefit of the Poor People—It Was Referred in the Senate, But the House Passed the Bill to Which He Had Refered.

Albany, March 25.—Governor Morton sent a special message to the senate to-night recommending the early passage of the New York police magistrate and police reorganization bills. The governor calls attention to a matter which he regards as being of the highest present importance, namely, the reorganization of the inferior courts of New York city.

Ten weeks, he says, have elapsed since a bill having this object in view was introduced in both houses, but the measure has not yet been passed by either house. Unless prompt action is taken there is danger that it may not become a law. Such a result would be a public misfortune. It is widely believed that in some of the present police courts of New York city there is to-day practical denial of justice. The serious charges concerning the police courts made in the report of the Lexow committee calls for a speedy remedy.

It is of these inferior criminal courts that the poor especially look for protection from oppression and wrong. When these fountains of justice are polluted the evil results to the people are beyond calculation.

The governor states that the bill to which reference is made was introduced in the senate by the chairman of the investigation committee above mentioned. Its object is to create an improved system of inferior criminal courts, and to give the public a new board of police magistrates. This legislation is a necessary step toward municipal reform. It is supplementary to the power of removal.

The governor is convinced that this power of removal already conferred should not be limited to administrative officers, but should be made to apply to the police justices. A doubt as to the constitutionality of this bill, he says, has been practically resolved in its favor by published opinions of some of the most eminent lawyers in New York.

The governor calls attention to the need of prompt reorganization of the New York police. He says that in the testimony before the Lexow committee it was charged that many members of the police force, among them officers of high grade, were not only black-mailers and extortioners but were also actively in league with the criminal classes. It is generally believed that the extent of these alleged corrupt practices has not yet been fully revealed.

The law abiding classes are naturally uneasy under such a condition of things. They demand that police officers who have betrayed their trusts or used their great power oppressively shall be ascertained and dismissed without unnecessary delay. This request should be heeded and such legislation enacted as will meet the emergency.

In the senate the message was ordered printed and referred to the judiciary committee.

The New York city police magistrates bill passed the assembly to-night by a vote of ayes 88; nays 19. The bill abolishes the New York city police justices and provides for the appointment of nine police magistrates in their stead to take office July 1.

He Defied the Mob.

Memphis, March 25.—Ex-Priest Slattery, whose appearance at Savannah created a riot, came near being mobbed in Memphis to-night. He spoke to an audience of about 1,200 and was interrupted with profane and vile accusations of falsehood. Leaving the hall he was escorted to the carriage by the police, but the horses ran away and dumping the carriage on the pavement. A great crowd gathered around at once and there were cries of "Pull him out," "Do him up." Slattery, whose wife was beside him, dared the crowd to come on. The police arrived in time to rescue him from his peril.

After the reading of the paper, a synopsis of which has been heretofore given, remarks were made by Captain Charles H. Townsend, William C. Wells and Thomas R. Trowbridge.

A vote of thanks was given to Captain Phipps and a request was made for a copy of the paper to be published by the society.

Walker; several letters written between 1779 and 1814 from Dr. Frederick Sheldon of Newport.

VIOLATED THE LAW.

Attention of Authorities Called to Secretary Carlisle's Action.

Quarantine, S. I., March 25.—When the steamer Paris arrived at Quarantine Saturday, and before the deputy health officer boarded her, the revenue cutter Hudson having on board Secretary Carlisle, ran along side the huge liner and Mr. Carlisle's son, William K. Carlisle, who was a passenger on the Paris, was taken on board the cutter and transferred to the city. The deputy health officer reported this violation of the quarantine law to his chief, Health Officer Doty this evening said:

"I called the attention of the collector of the port to the matter in a communication addressed to him, on Saturday last, and am now expecting a reply. I think the whole fault lies with the customs house inspector in charge of the party on the cutter. The person removed was suffering from no contagious disease, but he should have waited for the proper officer to grant permission to land."

The time for deposits has been extended to March 30, but hereafter a penalty of twenty-five cents a share must be paid by holders who desire to participate in the reorganization.

Mrs. Hermann Michels, Miss Amelia Ernst and Miss Carrie Ernst. She has two brothers living in New Haven, William Konold and Henry Konold, both of whom are well known, and two brothers, Matthew and Fred Konold, and a sister, Mrs. Haury in Collinsville.

Waterbury, March 25.—Champion James J. Corbett was given a big reception at the depot upon his arrival in this city to-night. Corbett made his appearance at the local opera house to-night in "Gentleman Jack." Corbett would not talk about the several fights that are being arranged.

Kids a Long Fight.

Danbury, March 25.—The appointment of Charles B. Mason to be postmaster in this city ends a long fight that has been on for the office. It is supposed that the strongest candidate was James McPhelimy of this city.

McPhelimy is a member of the state democratic central committee and is the recognized leader in democratic politics here. Through the fight he was supported by Congressman DeForest of the Fourth district. The defeat of McPhelimy has caused no end of talk in the town to-night.

Mortimer Rundle was elected mayor over William A. Braun. The former is a hat manufacturer in this city. Frank A. Bouton was elected city clerk. The republicans have control of the council electing three aldermen and the democrats one.

General Paine Withdraws.

Boston, March 25.—C. H. W. Foster, the prime mover in the Jubilee yacht syndicate, to-day said: General Paine has withdrawn his offer solely, I believe, because the matter has not gone through with a rush and with the enthusiasm expected. He does not wish to be placed in the position of offering the boat to those who might feel that they could not afford to put their money into whatever chances might be going.

STREET WILL BE EXTENDED.

ROAD COMMISSIONERS TAKE ACTION ON ELLSWORTH AVENUE.

Committee on Ordinances Consider Proposals to License Street Vendors, But No Decisive Action Was Taken—Will Consult Corporation Counsel.

At the meeting of the board of public works last evening all the members were present except Commissioner McGinn. In the absence of Mayor Hendrick Commissioner Johnson presided. The meeting was called specially for the purpose of considering the extension of Ellsworth avenue. Those present in relation to the subject were Henry G. Newton, representing George W. Mead, Councilman Chillingworth and several others.

Attorney Newton opposed the proposed extension on the ground that his client intended to use his property as a sort of villa and that the present layout was unfavorable for his plans. General E. E. Bradley, representing the park commission, stated that that body was heartily in favor of the extension and approved of the present layout, and desired that if the extension was made that the dirt secured by cutting the street through from Goffe street to the town line be used in filling the Beaver Ponds district.

Councilman Chillingworth also favored the proposed extension, and argued that four years ago the common council recommended the extension, the mayor signed the order and the committee on streets had declared that it was a public convenience and necessity.

After considerable further discussion the board decided to adopt the layout submitted by the city engineer, and refer it to the court of common council for confirmation with a recommendation that benefits and damages be assessed.

The question of sprinkling the streets of the city came up, and on motion of Commissioner Bishop was referred to the committee on streets with power to act.

The members also decided to refer to the corporation counsel for an opinion the question of the respective liability of the city and Consolidated railroad in the matter of paying for the new curbing ordered on Bridge street.

COMMITTEE ON ORDINANCES.

The meeting of the committee on ordinances last evening was well attended by persons interested in the passage of an ordinance providing for the licensing of street vendors of meat, fish, clams, fruits, vegetables, etc. All the members of the committee were present, as was also Mayor Hendrick. Among the citizens present were Councilmen Coolidge and Chillingworth, Captain James Whelan, Health Commissioner Manning, Loren H. Stannard and Charles E. Hart.

Commissioner Manning favored having the articles peddled around the streets inspected by some competent inspector, and suggested that this work could be readily done by the sanitary inspectors of the board of health.

Captain Whelan, while not opposed to the proposed ordinance claimed that the statute passed by the general assembly in 1893 exempted persons selling products of the farm and of seafaring food from being compelled to take out a license, and in this opinion he was supported by Harry Leigh, who stated that in his opinion the matter would have to be adjusted by the general assembly. The latter thought that some measure such as the one proposed should be taken, but thought that it would have to be brought in another way.

Charles E. Hart favored Commissioner Manning's proposition, and argued that the inspectors should also be authorized to condemn anything in a store or market as well as a peddler's wagon. Councilman Chillingworth favored a large license fee in the interests of the public health, and as a matter of protection to the retail merchants, all of whom contribute to the public support by paying taxes.

In executive session the committee decided to take no action in the matter, but to consult the corporation counsel and hold another meeting Saturday night, when a report will be formulated.

Last evening Officer Grant found Nolan wandering about the streets and took him to police headquarters. He will be returned to the asylum to-day. Up to a late hour last night the other two boys had not been captured.

BRADY REFUSES.

He Would Not Turn Over the Office to His Successor.

New York, March 25.—Stevenson Constable, who was appointed superintendent of buildings in place of Thomas J. Brady by Mayor Strong to-day called at Mr. Brady's office this afternoon and presented his appointment. It read:

"In place of Thomas J. Brady, resigned."

Mr. Brady refused to turn over the office to Mr. Constable, declaring that he had never sent his resignation to the mayor and did not intend to resign.

Fell to the Floor and Died.

Newark, N. J., March 25.—Michael Ryan, a watch case polisher employed at a factory here, died of heart failure at his boarding house this afternoon. He had just finished his breakfast when, as he attempted to rise from the table, he fell to the floor and expired in a few moments.

It Is Inexpedient.

Philadelphia, March 25.—Sixty-five bondholders of the Philadelphia, Reading and New England railroad (Poughkeepsie Bridge) met here this afternoon and adopted a resolution declaring that it is inexpedient to push the foreclosure proceedings heretofore instituted and that it is also inexpedient to formulate or adopt any plan of reorganization at this time.

Lost Her Propeller.

Port Monroe, Va., March 25.—Steamer City of Park, with forty passengers aboard for Colon, lost her propeller March 21 about five hundred miles out. Shortly afterwards the steamer Prince William IV. came along and took the Para in tow, arriving here this afternoon.

IT WILL BE SPEEDY.

Quick Punishment Will Be Meted to Koyama.

Washington, March 25.—No official confirmation of the attempted assassination of Li Hung Chang has been received at either the Chinese or Japanese legation. The general feeling is one of profound regret that this venerable Chinese diplomat should have fallen a victim to a fanatic's bullet. His effect upon the peace negotiations, should Li recover after a short illness, the only regret is that he is not here to delay the restoration of peace. Should he die, a postponement of the peace negotiations for a number of weeks is regarded as inevitable. It would be difficult to secure another envoy on the part of China who would be equally acceptable to Japan. The punishment which Li's assassin, Koyama, will receive will be speedy and severe. The attack upon Li, who is the direct representative of the emperor of China, is tantamount to an attack on the emperor himself, and so it will be sternly dealt with.

The younger generation of Japanese are being taught that it is barbarous not to respect the rights of foreigners in their country and they are reported as being strongly influenced by these teachings. The adults, however, particularly among the lower classes, have this yet to learn for this reason. It is argued that Koyama's act will meet with a hearty responsiveness from them. Even should Li recover it is regarded as probable that Koyama will be condemned to death as a warning to his fellow countrymen. The friends of Hon. John W. Foster are greatly disturbed over the shooting of Li Hung Chang, since it is feared that he may have met a similar fate. The absence of any dispatches to this effect, however, would indicate that no attempt has been made upon his life.

The report that China will not consent to a session of any part of her territory as one of the conditions of peace is not believed to be correct.

License Element Won.

Williamstown, Mass., March 25.—The largest town meeting in Williamstown for years was held to-day. The contest between license and no license was sharp, and the license element won by a majority of 5.

Argentine Wakes Up.

Washington, March 25.—In addition to having our cattle barred out of several European countries appears from information received by Secretary Morton that the Argentine republic is shaping its affairs so as to become one of our principal competitors in this business. A letter from Minister Buchanan says that the cattle shippers of that Argentine republic are looking to a development of their trade in both Great Britain and Germany, and that their trade is growing rapidly.

Will Sing Here This Week.

Of Miss Villa Whitney folk, who gives a recital of German folk song at Harmonie hall, this city, next Friday evening, the Hartford Courant said yesterday in its announcements:

"Owing to request, Miss White, at her fourth and closing recital this evening at Hosmer hall, will devote the hour to a group of folk songs illustrating the birth and early development of the song form. This will be in place of the Brahms songs, which will be given here some time in the future. The folk songs are charming in their simplicity and naïveté, and will make a fitting and felicitous finale to this delightful course. It is expected that gentlemen will take advantage of the change of hour and attend in large numbers. Miss White will sing in New York later this week and will be tendered a reception there by Mrs. Annie Louise Carey-Raymond, the famous contralto."

London, March 25.—The Central News correspondent in Madrid says: Strong public sentiment is felt still on account of the officers' riots. Officers are hissed frequently when they enter cafes or music halls. The whole affair has had a bad influence in the ranks.

SURPRISED BY BISMARCK.

THE OLD EX-CHANCELLOR MADE A SUDDEN APPEARANCE.

While Distinguished People Were Feasting in Procession at the Depot at Friederichsruhe, the Grand Old Man of Germany, Attired in Full Uniform, Appeared on the Scene and Gave Them We Come.

Friederichsruhe, March 25.—Prince Bismarck received the members of the Prussian diet and many members of the reichstag to-day. The members of the Prussian lower house were the first to arrive. They were welcomed by Count Herbert Bismarck, who asked them to wait at the station for the arrival of the members of the upper house. In the meantime General Count von Waldersee, in the uniform of the Hohenzollerns, grouped a small circle of distinguished persons about him on the platform. Count Bismarck, while busy himself with the assistance of Count Limburg in completing the arrangements for the conveyance of the visitors to the castle, evoked great laughter by remarking: "As the reichstag are not here officially they must travel in ordinary carriages and not in saloons."

Count Waldersee called out for some bismarckists to complete his group and Dr. Arendt, the eminent exponent of bismarckism, was found and dragged before Count von Waldersee, who placed him in position, and the group, which included Dr. Stoecker, was photographed. Suddenly there was a cry of "Bismarck comes!" and to the intense surprise of all the old chancellor appeared upon the platform quite unexpectedly and contrary to program.

The prince was attired in a full general's uniform, with cuirass and helmet. He wore a long gray cloak and carried a walking stick, though he did not use it. He walked erect and with firm step. He was attended by his chief forester, von Lange, and Count Stolberg. Everybody rushed towards him, and the prince said in a loud tone:

"Gentlemen, welcome to Launenberg."

To some who were nearest to him he remarked: "High hats and white ties are unwonted sights in the Saxon forest. We are rural here."

Councillor Kleinschmidt, a member of the landtag, said to the prince:

"The members of the reichstag have not yet arrived."

"What," said the chancellor, "are they permitted to come?"

Just then the train conveying the members of the reichstag arrived and Prince Bismarck was driven to the castle, the members waiting. The entire delegation assembled around the terrace facing the lawn. Count Stolberg, Herr von Koeller, Prussian minister of the interior, and ex-President von Liepsow walked through the castle to the terrace, where they made a short speech of congratulation, to which Prince Bismarck replied in a clear voice.

"The diets," the prince said, "ought to take a larger interest in the foreign policy. They ought to discuss what is known about the instructions a foreign minister receives and what he does. In the federal council the budget for salaries of foreign ministers always offers a chance for debating the foreign policy."

"This would tend to revive national feeling in the empire, which is not of late manifesting itself so strongly as I could wish. There is no doubt that there are people who labor under the erroneous impression that there are two separate and independent governments at Berlin. There is but one for the foreign policy, which as intended by the constitution ought to be impartial has been distorted by bureaucratic malpractices from the original intention. I am sorry I cannot directly take part in the management of affairs."

Here the ex-chancellor was interrupted by shouts of "so are we!"

With a wave of his hand Prince Bismarck continued: "No, I am not well enough to co-operate with you practically. (Hurrahs and cries of "yes, you are!") My ideas are with you, perhaps more than is proper for an old man like myself. But I cannot help myself. I must drive away what has become an habitual interest through life-long work. I cannot now express my feelings better than by impressing upon you, especially you members of the landtag, that you must hold fast to the original idea and remember that in Prussia also, we do not follow the Brandenburg, or Prussian policy, but the imperial government policy. In this sense I call upon you for three cheers for the Kaiser."

The cheers were given heartily. When quiet was restored Prince Bismarck added: "I very much wish my house were able to receive you all as my guests, but there is no room. Although there is room in the new castle for happy lovers, there is not room enough here for 400."

The concluding remarks of the ex-chancellor were greeted with laughter, and he retired for luncheon with the presidents of the bodies represented. Counts William and Herbert Bismarck and Count von Ramtzen, the ex-chancellor's son-in-law, were also present. The deputies departed for their homes on three special trains.
